If we were transferred to the sun, we would feel as much out of our element as the inhabitants of Ceres would feel here on earth; and, in fact, it will be readly seen that if the sun is peopled with beings constituted like our selves, its population must, wing to increased weight, consist of dwarfs two or three inches in height. Among them Tom Thumb would be a towering giant in comparison. It is very singular that the larger the world the smaller; the denizes must be, that the inhabitants of the modest planet earth, should be men; those of the tiny asteroid Ceres, giants.

These clauses, with the postponed sections, which form the kernel postponed sections, which form the kernel of the measure, will be taken upnext week, when it will be seen whether the government has the courage to defy the popular opposition, which is led by the most eminent men in Germany. The Liberal coalition appears to nave gained an advantage in the committee by securing the passage of a proposal submitted by Herr Rickert, reaffirming the principle of State control of the schools. Minister Zedlitz considered that the declaration did not affect the concessions of the State in the direction of clerical supervision, and he offered no resistance to the amendment, which was only opposed by the Centrist or Church party. Herr Rickert next tried to get the committee to fix the centres of Church party. But have the committee to fix five hours weekly as the maximum time to be devoted to religious instruction. On this practical question the Conservatives and Centrists were all alive, and they united to bring about its rejection.

This is regarded as a bad omen for the success of any of the other proposed modifications of the religious clauses. The clericals gave notice of several amendtowns has been convened here to pass an appeal to the government to withdraw the measure. At Franfort-on-the-Main the tenchers have been disseminating fierce attacks upon the bill, quoting Professor Virchow's phrase that it is "a disgraceful aberration of the human intellect." These teachers have been warned that they will be put under the discipline of the law if they continue their aggressive criticism. Pubcontinue their aggressive criticism. Public meetings have been held in every populous centre in Prussia to protest against the bili, and even Conservative districts are declaring in favor of modifications.

The London Strike Still On.

[By Anglo-American cable to the Dispatch.]

LONDON, February 13.—The report that the striking coal porters and their employers had settled their differences, and that the men would return to work on practically their own terms was premature. It was said last night that the masters had agreed to discharge the nonunion men in their employ, but to day they deny having made any such agreement, Many members of the Coal Forters'

Union, on the supposition that the whole trouble was ended, started to work the morning, but they found that several of coal-firms were working with a full staff of non-union men. Other of the firms refused to reinstate the men who had gone on strike, and so it appears that the trouble is as far from adjustment as ever.

FISHING FOR PORPOISES. Killed by Schools for Less Than 82 Apie

at Cape Hatteras. (Philadelphia Press.)

There is only one fishing-ground for porpoises on the Atlantic coast. It is just below Cape Hattere, and at this season of the year preparations are being made for the winter's sport. During the summer these curious mammals—for fish they are not—are scattered all over the ocean, but when cold weather comes the prey on which they feed—menhaden and other small fry that travel in schools—go southward and assemble in vast numbers in the shallows about the locality mentioned. The cape affords a barrier against the fierce winds from the north, and in the waters below it these north, and in the waters below it these (Philadelphia Press.)

little fishes seek a shelter. There accordingly the porpoises congregate.

Usually there are about twenty men in a porpoise-fishing camp. There must be a sufficient number to manage four boats and as many great seines. The boats are distributed at three stations along shore. Two of them are together in one spot, while the third is a mile above and the fourth a mile below. Each boat has a seine on board. Lookouts are continually stationed upon high bluffs to watch for game, and they signal with flags when a school of porpoises is coming.

Suppose the porpoises are coming down the coast. Warned in time by signals, the men at the station farthest south row

Suppose the porpoises are coming down the coast. Warned in time by signals, the men at the station farthest south row their boat rapidly out to sea, dropping the seine as they go. If the thing is properly managed they have been in time with their net to head off the first of the animals. As soon as the school or most of it has got past the station farthest north the boat from that point is run out in like fashion, dropping its seine on the way.

Thus the porpoises find themselves hemmed in between two fences of net, each stretching a mile out into the ocean. They might easily escape by swimming seeward save for the fact that mean while each stretching a mile out into the ocean. They might easily escape by swimming seaward save for the fact that mean while the two boats from the middle station have put out a mile from land, not dropping their seines on the way, but extending them in a line parallel with the shore and joining the two extremes of the other seines. In this way is made within a few moments a rectangular pen two miles long and one mile broad, in which the luckless beasts are confined. They could easily get out, of course, by breaking through the nets, inasmuch as their strength is enormous, but they do not think of that.

The porpoises thus inclosed are surmous, but they do not think of that.

The porpoises thus inclosed are surrounded with smaller seines and drawn in shore, where they are kept thus in a little room until the fishermen wish to kill them. Sometimes as many as two hundred will be secured at a single haul. The fishery is very profitable, because there are several products of the porpoise which are valuable. The skin affords an excellent leather. Upon being stripped from the animal the hides are salted down, tanned crudely, and shipped to northern markets, where they are used in the manufacture of shoes, travelling-bags, and other goods.

He drew the cork of the bottle, held it up, and let its contents trickle down his throat. Then he explained: "It is not only harmless, but it has been discovered that it is an excellent antiseptic. When my boy had diphtheria some months ago the doctor prescribed this, and it cured him. It cuts away that beculiar growth in the throat that is one of the accompaniments of diphtheria, and it cleanses the system. I have known for years that it makes a fine wash for the teeth. It removes all the impurities and gives a fine gloss to the enamel. You take a little in your mouth and rinse the teeth. The fluid forms into a soapy liquid has a dentifrice, and cleans the teeth readily. You don't even have to use a tooth-prush, unless you care to. The rinsing of the mouth is sufficient. There is a man in town who asserts that this peroxide of hydrogen is the great cure-all that the world has been looking for, but he is an extremist, I fear. All that I know about it is that it does not injure the hair, and that it makes an effective dentifrice. It is seldom used, however, except for its original purpose of bleaching hair. I have han it analyzed by competent ehemiste, who didn't know why I wanted it tested, and they say that it to devoid of harm when applied to the hair.

Two of Them Crippled-An Attack on the State Troops Apprehended-

NASHVILLE, TENN., February 13.-A spe cial from Knozville, Tenn., says: It was learned last evening that on Thursday drunken men, thought to be miners, fired upon the pickets of the State troops at the Coal-Creek convict camp. The Gatling-gun was turned on the men and two of them were crippled. Several houses in Coal Creek were filled with leaden missles, and Creek were filled with leaden missies, and the tenants were badly frightened. Com-mander Anderson has telegraphed General Carnes, at Memphis, for more ammunition and arms. Five hunered miners did not work yesterday, but held a meeting to celebrate Lincoln's birthday.

Some very fiery speeches were made and the miners were told to defend themselves against the troops and wipe them off the earth if any blood was shed. Crowds of men were seen among the hills in and around Coal Creek last night, but the usual daylight quiet surrounds the situation to-day. There was no attack on the troops last night, but as many miners are not working and a few are drinking freely, it is feared trouble may occur tonight.

Governor Buchanan received a dispatch last night from Coal Creek stating that some unknown parties had fired on the soldiers Thursday night, but that no one was hurt. FIERY SPEECHES.

THE SIGNS IN THE HEAVENS Lieut. Totten Figures that the Saviour

Advent is Imminent at Any Moment. Laeutenant Totten, United States army in an interview to-day regarding the coujunction of Jupiter and Venus, had this to say in addition to what he said in a previous interview, says a New Haven (Connecticut) dispatch to the New York Sun:

"It is a rare occurrence instead of a frequent one. It alway coincides with notable events. These planets are for signs and seasons. They never fail to make them. Some twenty-one conjunctions have occurred since Luther's time. I will refer, only to the last. On July 20 and 21, 1859, there was a conjunction of Jupiter
and Venus which closely resembled the coming one. Now, this conjunction followed the regular law and preceded historic events of the utmost moment. They give warning to the watchers exactly as the conjunction which preceded the nativity by several years warned the Magi of coming events. The conjunction of 1859, of course, preceded the year 1860.
Let us see what occurred in 1860 and thereabouts. It is perhaps needless to mention the civil war, an unparalleled strife. But the world was in the throes of war at the same time, for all the world has hitherto revolved about Rome. It was in 1860 that Victor Emanuel led the insurrection in the Papal States, on September 11th, defeated the Papal troops at Castel Fidardo on September 18th, taking Arcona on September 17-29th, Victor Emanuel took command of the army, and entered the kingdom of Naples on October 18th. Garibaldi defeated the Neapolitans at Volturno, and greeted Victor Emmanuel as King of Italy on October 28th. He entered Naples as King on November 7th. This was as short as the Franco-Prussian war. In the far East affairs were likewise significant in religion. The massacre of the Christians by the Druses was May 28th to July 1st. The Mohammedans massacred the Christians at Damascus, 3,300 slain, on July 2th; the English and French governments interfered in August; 4,000 French solders landed at Bevont on August 22d; Lord Dufferin, the British Commissioner in Syria, arrived in Damascus on September 6th. Note
now that these punishment were over. Since 1828 the watchers are counting one generation of threescore years and ten to at least the lunar beginning of the climax, be that what it may. Now Miller's day comes in between. Historians will never forget those days of excitement, Venus and Saturn came into conjunction in the same field of the telescope on December 19, 1845, and marked another of those coincidences which never fail."

"When do you expect the end of the world, Lieutenant?"

"My answer to that is, 'the world en-

world, Lieutenant?"
"My answer to that is, 'the world endureth forever.' I have never put my mind to work to solve so outrageous a problem. The end of the age is a different thing. My belief is that it ends with the generation now living. The Saviour's advent is imminent at any minute."

He Could Not Tell a Lie.

He Could Not Tell a Lie.

[New York Ledger.]

Peyton Fitzboomer, a somewhat effeminate representative by descent of one of the oldest of the F. F. V.'s, desired, as a personal attendant or valet, a servant who should be absolutely truthful. He had suffered much from the prevaricating proclivities of former menials. He at length found in the person of Julius Cassar, a youthful darkey fresh from the interior, one who promised to suit him. Julius declared that he did not know how to lie, and that he would never try to learn.

One day Fitzboomer appeared, dressed in a fashion most fetching. He was bound on a visit to some lady friends.

"Julius," said he, to his new servant, "how do Ilook?"

Loose sales for the week, about 500,000 pounds.
The sale of brights to-day at Davenport's warehouse shows we keep up bright sales six days in the week.
Thougu some light tobaccos were taken in this week our prices have ruled quite strong whenever the grades suited this markst, as its case of fine fillers, outters or bright wrappers. Some large course wrapping leaf and undesirable mahoganies were hard to place at high prices. A considerable quantity of old bright mahogany was sold at full prices, and many pinalers went home pleased.
